ACCELERATE RESEARCH

Requests for information (RFIs): Threat intelligence research can be difficult, and CrowdStrike can provide assistance. RFIs are requests for CrowdStrike to perform research on a specific threat to your organization, provided by a domain expert who delivers custom responses to up to five RFIs.

Priority intelligence requirements (PIRs): PIRs align the activities of threat intelligence teams to the goals and strategies of your organization. CrowdStrike experts leverage knowledge of your PIRs to provide proactive notifications of threat activities that may target your organization, employees or infrastructure. Examples of PIRs include:

- Which nation-state actors are targeting your region or industry?
- Are there threats from criminal underground sites monitored by CrowdStrike?
- What tactics and techniques are adversaries likely to use to exploit your infrastructure?

Worldwide threat telemetry: The CrowdStrike Threat Graph® analyzes over 3 trillion security events from across the globe every week. CrowdStrike analysts search through Threat Graph data to determine the prevalence of a specific indicator of compromise (IOC) globally or within your sector or region.
